Dear Miss Moss:

I just got the news that you have not yet received the promised Decca shipments. This was both surprising and disappointing, since our instructions were sent out early in December, and I had already been anticipating your report on the reaction. I have been in touch with our Boston office and find, to my chagrin, that the instructions never reached them.

Please accept our apologies for an unaccountable mix-up in the mails somewhere along the line. The situation is of course being remedied at once.

Cordially yours,

Michael Conner
